Van Metre Ranks on Washington Post's Inaugural Best Workplace Ratings

Van Metre Companies ranks #19 on Top 150 in the Washington D.C. Region.

Stone Ridge, VA (June 20, 2014) – Van Metre Companies has been given the distinction of ranking #19 in the Washington Post's 150 Top Workplaces in Greater Washington region within the Midsize Companies category, including businesses employing 151 to 499 workers.

The 150 organizations comprising the rankings were ordered based solely on employee surveys, evaluating their workplaces based off a number of host factors ranging from pay and benefit practices, quality of leadership, and work-life balance issues, to charitable work, parental-leave policies, right down to more causal details such as the quality of snacks they put in the break room refrigerator.

These companies represent the ideal dynamic in what makes an efficient, successful workplace, by consistently gauging workplace morale and ever-addressing it for the benefit of their employees both as a unit, and on an individual basis to ensure true company prosperity.

Van Metre Companies will continue to build upon an already solid foundation to take the helm, as not only one of the elite homebuilders in the Washington D.C. Metropolitan area, but best workplaces as well.

Van Metre Companies is one of the area's most successful private, multi-disciplinary real estate developers having constructed over 16,000 houses and several thousand apartments, as well as office buildings and shopping centers in Northern Virginia. Van Metre communities include master-planned developments, as well as neighborhoods in smaller subdivisions and third-party planned communities. Van Metre can truly be a resident's "builder for life", with home designs for every stage of life. To learn more, visit www.VanMetreCompanies.com.
